Short title

7. This Act is called the Executive Members' Ethics Act, 1998.

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE EXECUTIVE MEMBERS' ETHICS BILL, 1998

1. Section 96(1) of the Constitution requires that Members of the Cabinet and Deputy Ministers, and section 136(1) that Members of Executive Councils, must act in accordance with a code of ethics prescribed by national legislation. The Bill seeks to make provision for the publication of such a code and matters connected therewith.

2. The main objects of the Bill are to—

2.1 empower the President to publish a code of ethics in the Government Gazette which will apply to the President, the Deputy President, Premiers, Ministers, Deputy Ministers and Members of Executive Councils. The code is not contained in the Bill itself. The expression “national legislation” used in sections 96(1) and 136(1) of the Constitution is to be distinguished from the expression “Act of Parliament” used elsewhere in the Constitution. “National legislation” is defined in section 239 of the Constitution to include “subordinate legislation made in terms of an Act of Parliament”.

2.2 empower the Public Protector to investigate and report to the President or a Premier on any alleged breach of the code of ethics. There is no requirement in the Constitution that the observance of the code should be enforced by way of criminal sanctions. Criminal conduct such as corruption and bribery is already catered for in our law and need not be dealt with by the code. It is accordingly proposed that the code should not affect any criminal prosecution in respect of any offence committed.

2.3 make it clear that the code of ethics will not affect the President's power to appoint or dismiss the members of Cabinet, even during the course of an investigation.

2.4 prescribe by whom and how complaints are to be submitted to the Public Protector.

3. CONSULTATION AND RESEARCH

3.1 The following persons and bodies were consulted in the drafting of the Bill:

3.1.1 Ministers of State and members of the Judiciary, Civil Service, Parliament or Congress, as the case may be, in the United Kingdom, United States of America and the Republic of Ireland.

3.1.2 President and Deputy President.

3.1.3 Minister of Water Affairs and Forestry.

3.1.4 The Public Protector.

3.2 Comparative research into African, Asian, European and American codes were conducted through the assistance of the National Democratic Institute and Transparency International.

4. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

The Office of the President and the State Law Advisers are of the opinion that the procedure established by section 75 of the Constitution should be followed in respect of the Bill since it is not a Bill to which the procedure set out in section 74 or 76 of the Constitution applies.
